

A three froned suction pad, operated by compressed air or a water supply.

When energized the Limpet will grip almost any surface above or below water, with remarkable tenacity. The Limpet is particularly useful as a holding point for divers and their equipment underwater as well as for lifting purposes. It is fitted with either a loop for a handhold or a T-Bar attachment which the diver can fit behind his knees, leaving both hands free for work.

